circles of the National Capital. The club was never in better form, and under the direction of Mrs. A. M. Blair sur passed its former achievements in its musical tone, precision of attack and ood enunciation.

The assisting soloists were Miss Florew York and Jacob C. Garber, violinst, of Bridgeport, Pa. Miss Strange gave two groups of songs, displaying a voice of rich quality, and in some of the num bers, unusual dramatic power, amona her selections being Mein Triangel. Kaifen, "all by Dvorak; "Youth," by Gilberte, "The Yea's at the Spring," by Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, "The Swan Bent Low to the Lily," by MacDowell, "Stormy Evening," by Sidney Homer, and "Eagle," by Karl Busch, Responding to the appreciation of the audience, she gave also a "Nocturne," by Kramer, and "Keine Sarg um den Weg," by Raff.
